TIGHTENING ELECTIONS LAW

CLINTON COUNTY CASE LED GOV. HUGHES TO ACT.

Justice Stover's Decision Benying a Petition for an Inquest Called Forth the Emer-Message-Association Going With Bribery Investigation.

The new corrupt practices act which had been long slumbering in committee at Albany and for the passage of which Gov. Hughes recently sent an emergency message to the Legislature has now been adopted by both houses at Albany and it only awaits the signature of the Governor to become a law. The new measure makes many important changes in certain sections of the election law concerning campaign contributions and the expenditures of candidates, particularly with reference to the provisions for judicial inquiry relative to corruption at the polls which may be brought to the attention of the courts.

The bill had had hard sledding in the Legislature in spite of the efforts in its favor by the Association to Prevent Corrupt Practices at Elections and it is likely that it would have been slumbering in some pigeonhole yet had not the attention of the Governor been sharply called to the necessity for it by a series of incidents that happened in connection with the inquest initiated by the association into the alleged vote buying at the polls in Clinton county last fall.

Several prominent Republican politicians were implicated in the proceedings, including ex-Secretary of State John F. O'Brien and State Gas Commissioner Shedden, who is now said to be a candidate for one of the places on the Public Utilities Commission.

When the inquest had gone far enough to show what an extraordinary state of affairs obtained at the election in Clinton county last fall and when affidavits were secured to show that votes were bought wholesale for a dollar each and that out of the 12,000 voters in the county 4,000 were floaters, strenuous efforts were made to throttle the investigation.

The order for the inquest was issued by Justice Spencer of the Supreme Court, who tives in Gloversville.

He was sitting in Brooklyn when the order for the inquest was asked for by the association. Many affidavits concerning vote buying in Clinton were presented to him and he ordered the inquest to proceed. A date was set for the taking of testimony, but in the meantime Justice Spencer granted an adjournment to the defence, which was the Republican county committee of Clinton, of which Commissioner Shedden is the While this adjournment was in force the defence applied to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court for a writ of rohibition, but the writ was denied and the nquisition ordered to go on at Plattsburg

In the meantime there was something doing at Plattsburg. The association had secured a large number of additional affidavits concerning vote buying which if epted by the courts might compel crimaccepted by the courts might competering in all proceedings against several conspicuous Republicans of the county. All the prominent members of the Republican machine, including O'Brien and Shedden, were subpœnaed, and it looked as though there was going to be an upheaval in the politics of Clinton county.

Senator Brackett, among other lawyers, had been retained by the prosecution, and he declared, it is said, that he would be glad to take part in the inquest when it was ordered by the court. But he changed his mind before the proceedings were called, saying that he would be unable to appear account of other pressing business. on account of other pressing business. The members of the association then re-tained William Church Osborn, James W. Osborne of this city and George S. Bixby, who formerly lived in Plattsburg and has large property interests there, for the prosecution.

When the inquest opened instead of allowing the calling of witnesses Justice Spencer desired to hear again the argument on the constitutionality of the law which had been gone into before him at a previous session. So this phase of the case was thrashed out again. Then he raised the transfer of the against the position calling for the inquest. This question was gone over again, too, whereupon, according to the association's lawyers who were present, the Judge informed them that he had been thinking about the matter while coming to Plattsburg on the train. Then, according to these lawyers, he took from his pocket a long typewritten statement in which he reversed himself and denied the petition for the inquest. It was immediately after these matters were made known to Gov. Hughes that he sent the emergency message to the Legislature calling for the passage of the new corrupt practices bill which was drawn to meet any possible attack that might be made on its constitutionality.

This bill, when it becomes a law, will have no direct effect on the Clinton county situation, but is designed to prevent such tactics to defeat the purpose of the law in the future. In the meantime the association is going right on with the case. It has already spent a large amount of money in its efforts to root out corruption at the polls in this particular terriruption at the poils in this particular terri-tory and declares that it doesn't propose to be turned from its purpose now by a mere technicality. Preparations are now being made for an appeal from the decision of Instice Spencer.

The new bill amends Section 212 so that upon the presentation of a petition for an inquest and the giving of the security provided for, the court shall forthwith issue an order upon the persons named directing them to appear within ten days and show cause why they should not file a statement of election expenses or amend the statement of election expenses or amend the statement aiready filed, and to furnish to the court such other information as it may require on the subject. Fifty days instead of thirty are allowed for the presentation of the petition.

Section 214 of the new bill provides that the court shall, upon the return of the order to show causa immediately and in of election expenses or amend the statement order to show cause, immediately and in such a manner as the court or Justice may direct, and without respect to any technical requirements, inquire into the facts and circumstances of the charges.

In Section 214, which describes the persons who must make statements of campaign expenses, candidates are included. The section now reads:

expenses, candidates are included. The section now reads:
"Any person, including a candidate," &c., the words "including a candidate" being inserted in the old section. The minimum amount required to be accounted for has been reduced from $10 to $5. Hereafter all contributions made by a candidate himself must be included in the statements be may make.

Court of Appeals Decides That He Had the Right to Employ Women Certain Nights. ALBANY, June 14 .- The order of the Appellate Division against the State was ffirmed to-day by the Court of Appeals in the case of David L. Williams, who had been convicted in an action instituted by the State Laber Department for the employment of women in his printing and binding establishment at 437 Eleventh avenue, New York, after 10 o'clock on the night of January 31, 1906, in violation of the law prescribing hours of labor for

Williams secured an arrest of judgment and an order directing his discharge from custody on the ground that he was acting within his rights in employing women on certain nights of the week in the stitching sheets of magazines, the dexterity of women having been found superior to men for the task. Conviction was secured for the employment of Kate Mead, a woman the employment of Kate Mead, a woman "more than 21 years of age."

The opinion was written by Judge Gray, who declares it as the judgment of the court that the Legislature in preventing the employment of an adult woman in a factory and in prohibiting her to work therein before 6 o'clock in the morning or after 9 o'clock in the evening has overstepped the limits set by the State Constitution on the exercise of the power to interfere with the rights of citizens. The opinion with the rights of citizens. The opinion 88 YE:

Under our laws men and women now stand alike in their constitutional rights, and there is no warrant for making any discrimination between them with respect to the liberties

I find nothing in the language of the section which suggests the purpose of promoting health, except that it might be inferred that for a woman to work during the forbidden hours of night would be unhealthful. If the inhibition of the section in question had been framed to prevent the ten hours of work from being performed at night or to prolong them beyond 9 o'clock in the evening t might more readily be appreciated that the health of women was the matter of legislative concern. That is not the effect of the sense of the provision of the section with which alone we are dealing. It was not the case upon which this defendant was convicted. If this enactment is to be sustained, then an adult woman, although a citizen and entitled as such to all the rights of citizenship under our laws, may not be employed or contract to work in any factory for any period of time, no matter how short, if it is within the prohibited hours, and this, too without any regard to the healthfulness of the employment. It is clear, as it seems to me, that this legislation cannot and should not be upheld as a proper exercise of the police power. It is certainly discriminative against female citizens in denying to them equal rights with men in the same pursuit

The courts have gone very far in upholding legislative entactments framed clearly for the welfare, comfort and health of the community and that a wide range in the exercise of the police power of the State should be conceded I do not deny. But when it is sought, under the guise of a labor law, arbitrarily, as here, to prevent an adult female citizen from working at any time of the day that suits her I think it is time to call a halt. It arbitrarily deprives citizens of their right to contract with each other. The tendency Legislatures in the form of regulatory measures to interfere with the lawful pursuits of citizens is becoming a marked one in this country, and it behooves the courts firmly, fearlessly to interpose the barriers of their judgment when invoked to protest against legislative acts plainly transcending the powers conferred by the Constitution upon the legislative body.

PATRICK J. RYDER DEAD.

Leader of the Third Who Was Mixed Up in Ahearn Investigation.

Patrick Joseph Ryder, Tammany leader of the Third Assembly district, died of heart disease yesterday afternoon at his home, 14 St. Luke's place. He was born in Ireland in 1859 and came to this country in 1865 with his father. He attended public school in Grove street and after he finished the course went into the plumbing business with his father at 147 Spring street. He got into politics when he was a young man and in 1892 was elected an Alderman, serving four years. In 1898 he was elected a mem-ber of Council and in the same year sucper of Council and in the same year succeeded Patrick Keogh as member of the Democratic State committee. In 1899, at the death of John Purcell, he became leader of the Third.

A month ago the investigation into the affairs of Borough President Ahearn's office disclosed the fact that Mr. Ryder's plumbing firm, O'Brien, Ryder & Co., composed of Patrick J. Ryder and Joseph W. O'Brien, got in three years about all the city's plumbing, to the amount of $110,999.16.

There was practically no competitive hid-There was practically no competitive bidding. Most of the plumbing jobs amounted to close to $1,000, which is the limit set by the city Charter on any lob that may be let without competitive bidding. It was brought out also that O'Brien had retired from the firm and that Ryder controlled from the firm and that Ryder controlled all the business. For several years bills were rendered in O'Brien's name because the city Charter prohibited Ryder, as a member of the City Council, from doing work for the city. The only customer during the time that Ryder was a city official to whom bills were made out in O'Brien's name was the city of New York.

Mr. Ryder was a member of the Jeffersonian Club, Democratic Club, Columbian Order, Knights of Columbus and Monticello Club. He was a bachelor.

WILLIAMS'S RELEASE APPIRMED. ALBANY DEADLOCK UNBROKEN

SUB-COMMITTEE TO WORK SUN-DAY ON APPORTIONMENT.

ssembly Conferees Have a Four Minute Session With the Governor-They Prepare a New Plan for Redistricting This City-Rumers About the Big Stick. ALBANY, June 14 .- As was expected the seembly conferees on the apportionment question have discovered another plan to redistrict the State. This latest is called the "link sausage" apportionment. It is described by one of the Senate conferees as follows: "They take the maps of New York and Kings counties, draw lines across them and cut the two counties up as you would a piece of bologna."

That there is not a chance of anything being done in a hurry was indicated when Speaker Wadsworth to-day informed the Assemblymen that there wasn't any real necessity for them coming back Monday. The majority of Assemblymen understand that they can stay home until they are telegraphed for, and it isn't likely there will be much of an attendance until the day set for final adjournment. Then they couldn't be kept away from Albany. Each Assemblyman as well as each Senator has $300 of his money on deposit in the safes of the finance clerks of the two houses. For several weeks the legislators have been casting covetous glances, as well as hungry ones, at the safes, but the combination is on and there will be nothing doing until the last day of the session. This $300 represents all that is left of their salaries and mileage, and they are not supposed to be paid this balance until the session is ended.

This morning after the session of the two houses had ended the conference committees got to work again. Owing to the death of Senator Tully's father he left for his home in Corning. It was therefore decided that the Senators and Assembly men who were to be in Albany over Sunday were to constitute a sub-committee and try to agree on an apportionment. This subcommittee consists of Senators Cassidy and Smith and Assemblymen Merritt and Quite a sensation was caused when these four committeemen went to the Governor's Chamber and saw him just exactly four minutes. It became noised about that the Governor was to be asked to take a hand in the apportionment fight. Last night the Assembly conferees refused to submit their plan to him as suggested by the Senate conferees. The willingness with which the Senators were ready to take the Governor's counsel and the refusal of the Assemblymen caused more attention of the Assemblymen caused more attention to be paid to the rumors that perhaps there would be an exhibition of big stick within a short time. Consequently when the sub-committee went to see the Governor everybody thought the solution had been reached. But it developed that the Assemblymen wished to ask the Governor if it were true that he would not stand for an apportionment plan that provided for a district with less population than half the population of Westchester county. The Governor informed them that that was his position.

was his position. Then the sub Then the sub-committee went to the office of the Secretary of State and got down the last census of New York and counties. This census is given by blocks. The Assemblymen fell to work to redistrict those two counties according to population. It made no difference whose district was affected. The Assemblywhose district was anecoed. The Assembly-men were going to change everything. They said that if they could not have shoe-string districts up State there could not be any, as there are now, in New York and Kings. The Assemblymen will submit their new plan when the full conference com-mitted gots together again.

As matters now stand the Assemblymen have absolutely departed from what they first set about to secure, for Speaker wadsworth's home county in the latest apportionment prepared by him is taken from Papa's Congress district, and that was the reason why the Speaker objected to the Tully plan. The Senators who are fighting steadfastly for the Tully plan believe that the Assemblymen are expectations are expectations.

believe that the Assemblymen are expecting more pronounced assistance from the President and his friends than the mere offering of Federal patronage to induce Senators to change their views.

"Every one knows," said one Senator, "that State Chairman Woodruff owes his present position in the organization to the President. While Herbert Parsons is a Hughes man he is only a Hughes man so far as the President wants him to be. Mr. far as the President wants him to be. Mr. Parsons is essentially a Roosevelt product. The President has always shown a high regard for the Speaker and the President would like to have the delegates from the Wadsworth Congress district for his nominee for President."

Senator Tully before going home to-day said that there wasn't a chance of the Senate adopting any other plan than his and that the Assembly will eventually have to give in.

"BROKER" WEAVER ARRESTED. ADRIFT IN STORM TOSSED BAY Head of Raided Concern in Jersey City and

Eighteen Others Are Held. Ralph M. Weaver of R. M. Weaver & Co. whose so-called brokerage office at 45 Montgomery street, Jersey City, was raided by the local police on Thursday afternoon, went to the First Criminal Court yesterday to see what would happen to A. Edward Meyer, the office manager, and seventeen other employees of the company who were caught in the dragnet. Chief of Police Monahan telephoned from headquarters to Court Officer William Prescott to arrest

Weaver and the latter was compelled to join the other prisoners as defendant. Weaver described himself as a broker, 38 years old, living at 31 Madison avenue, Montolair, N. J. boat came perilously near capsizing.

Frank M. Lowery of Meriden, Conn., who swore out the warrant on which the raid was made, testified that he agreed with Weaver to do business with the company on a two point margin basis and that pany on a two point margin basis and that a private wire was put in his Meriden office. He told about buying ten shares of Consolidated Gas and telegraphing to the Jersey City office to sell the stock at once. He said the concern owed him $175 on the deal, but he was unable to get it. The wires stopped working while his messages were going through and he came to Jersey City to demand an accounting. He said he didn't get any satisfaction and was he didn't get any satisfaction and was further told that he had got all he was going to get.

Lowery volunteered the information that he had been in the bucket shop business in Philadelphia for twenty-five years and thoroughly understood the game. He said he quit the business in Pennsylvania owing to the stringency of some recently enacted laws.

Chief Monahan testified to Lowery's visit to police headquarters and the complaint he had made against R. M. Weaver & Co.'s methods of doing business. Asked by Assemblyman Joseph Tumulty, counsel for the defendants, whether any Hudson county people had ever lodged complaints against the concern, the chief replied: "I don't feel like answering that question at don't feel like answering that question at this time." Judge Higgins ruled that the question was a proper one and Monahan answered in the negative.

The Judge held Weaver and Meyer in $2,000 bail each for the Grand Jury on a charge of keeping a disorderly house where gambling was engaged in on the rise and fall of stocks. He also held the other defendants in $200 bail each for "aiding and abetting gambling."

defendants in $200 bail each for "aiding and abetting gambling."
Counsel for Weaver obtained from Vice-Chancellor Garrison yesterday a rule compelling the police to show cause at Chancery Chambers on Monday morning why they should not be enjoined from interfering with the business of the brokerage concern at 45 Montgomery street. This action was taken after Chief Monahan had ordered Acting Captain James Kelly of the First precinct to prevent the company from resuming operations.

BROOKLYN, MEN SPEND NIGHT IN A DORY WITH ONE OAR.

Tide Carried Them Toward Rockaway Inlet and Open Sea, Rain Soaked and Numbed Them and Schooner Nearly Cut Them Down-Saved by a Shirt Sail.

Carried about by the tides of Jamaics Bay in a rowboat with only one oar and drenched to the skin by the rain which half filled the little craft Michael J. Kelly, a Brooklyn fireman, and a one armed man whose name is not known were adrift all Thursday night. The seas whipped up by the high wind ran high and at times the

The danger of being carried out of the bay into the Atlantic Ocean through the Rockaway Inlet faced the men, but they were helpless. To their good fortune and the prayers of his son at home John Kelly attributes the salvation of himself and companion.

Kelly is engineer of Engine Company 124 in Brooklyn and lives at 44 Wyckoff street. He is a hearty fire veteran well along in the fifties. Invariably he spends his leisure time about the Long Island water resorts, and on Thursday, having started on his vacation, he took a trip to Rockaway Beach. Here he fell in with the one armed man with whom he was to spend the wild night in the storm tossed bay.

The man was on the waterfront in a small launch and he invited the firemen to take a ride. Soon they were on their way to Roxbury's, near Rockaway Point. Off Rox-Roxbury's, near Rockaway Point. Off Roxbury's the engine broke down but the men managed to get ashore in a dory. The engine was helplessly out of order and early in the evening they left the craft in the care of the hotel people and started in the dory for Barren Island, where they meant to await the arrival of the little steamer Fannie McKane or the McAvoy, which would carry them to Canarsie. Kelly understood that his companion lived in understood that his companion lived in Brooklyn.

A stiff row of a mile and a half faced them The tide was running strong and the wind The tide was running strong and the wind had tossed up a nasty cross sea which made rowing hard. They had only one pair of oars. Kelly got the dory under way and was doing well against the strong tide and wind when a wave snapped one of the oars off. They were then close to the Barren Island shore.

The tide was running into the bay strong and though they worked hard they were unable to make a landing with the one oar. They called out, but their cries were unheard. Night was closing down on them. They were carried with the tide. Then came the heavy rainstorm. The wind freshened and soon blew a small gale. Fishing craft coming in from outside passed near, but the storm drowned the passed rear, but the storm drowned the passed rear, but the storm drowned the passed rear. men's yells and the darkness shut them from view. A big schooner came danger-ously near cutting them down, but passed ously near cutting them down, but passed along heedless of the men.

The rain soaked them. The dory was leaky and they soon were forced to bail for their lives. Big waves menaced them and several times the rowboat almost went under. The wind was cold and numbed them. Getting in a maze of channels they were carried about haphazardly.

The tide turned in the middle of the night. As the hours went by Kelly and the one armed man saw the lights of Canarsie and at the other resorts flicker out. In an endeavor to get somewhere Kelly and his friend rigged their shirts into a sail and used their one oar as a mast. To the corners of the shirts they tied some fishing tackle and held the improvised sail to the wind.

Their ingenuity saved them from being carried out into the open sea, for the tide had turned and was running out through the Rockaway Inlet and had they drifted this surely would have been their fate. They were exhausted from exposure and babiler. The best was passive filled with pailing. The boat was nearly filled with When dawn broke they saw that they when dawn broke they saw that they were close to a sand bar and a little later they ran aground near Irish Creek. Shortly after a catboat with the two baymen came along and at 6 o'clock they reached the Canarsie shore.

WIFE GONE, SAYS DR. J. A. BOOTH.

Tells Police She Disappeared From a Sanitarium a Week Ago -A Denial. Dr. J. Arthur Booth of 129 West Seventy seventh street has asked the police to look for his wife. He said she was demente and had been a patient in a sanitarium at Greenwich, Conn., until a week ago when she disappeared. She was seen last, Dr. Booth said, on the night of June 11 near Williamsbridge. The wife of the doctor who runs the sanitarium said over the telephone last night:
"Mrs. Booth was here until a week ago,

not as a patient but as a guest and friend.

If she was demented I did not observe it.

She did not disappear. She merely went away when her visit was ended."

Dr. Booth insisted that his wife had been a regular patient in the sanitarium and that she had disappeared. He had received no further information as to her where abouts, he said last night.

MISSING IN THE ADIRONDACKS.

Grand Chancellor Kirkland and Past Chan cellor Wallace, Knights of Pythias. UTICA, June 14.-Grand Chancellor Kirk-

and of Binghamton and Past Chancellor Charles Wallace of Watertown, prominent in Knights of Pythias circles, went on a fishing expedition near Tupper Lake in the Adirondacks on Tuesday, and as they have not returned it is feared they may have taken the wrong trail somewherein the forest and become lost. Messrs. Kirkland and Wallace are accompanied by V. C. Dievendorf of Tupper Lake.

Mr. Dievendorf is said to be quite familiar with that region and it is believed that he will ultimately find his way out, but as the death of the control of the said to be said party carried only a small amount of feed fears are entertained that they may suffer severely from hunger before they succeed n getting to where eatables are obtain-

EIGHT "UNDESIRABLE" JURORS. Judge Rosalsky Orders Their Names

Stricken From the List. Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions discharged from further service yesterday eight of the jurors who tried Frederick Schoneland for assault on a girl. The jury disagreed, but before that they sent word through their foreman that they would vote for conviction if Schoneland did not get more than two years. The eight jurors who were dismissed yesterday voted for acquittal, as Judge Rosalsky found out after an investigation. Judge Rosalsky also sent word to Commissioner of Jurors Allison that the names of the eight should be stricken from the jury list. He told Commissioner Allison that they were "undesirable" jurors.

CHARTER REVISION VETOED. Mayor McClellan Opposes the Governor's

Power of Appointm Mayor McClellan vetoed yesterday the bill passed by the Legislature providing for the appointment of a commission for the revision of the city's Charter. In a memorandum explaining the reasons for his wrote:

This bill is thoroughly objectionable, my opinion, for three reasons. First, it is mandatory in its terms and burdens the city with a large expense without the consent of the local authorities. Second, it provides that this commission shall make a final report to the Governor, for submission to the port to the Governor, for submission to the Legislature, on or before the first day of December, 1907. The period of five months thus allowed is, in my judgment, far too short a time for an adequate and comprehensive revision of the city Charter. it places the appointive power in the hands of the Governor, instead of the Mayor of the city of New York, and allows him to name non-residents as members of this commission. I fully appreciate the need of a thorough revision of the present city Charter. In fact I called attention to such a necessity in my annual message to the Board of Aldermen dated January 7, 1907, in which I stated:

"The amended Charter of the city of New York has now been in force for a period of five years. In many respects it has successfully withstood the test of time, but there are a great number of provisions which in the opinion of competent judges are in need of a thorough revision. I believe that such a revision should be initiated by the city itself, and I therefore propose in a short time to appoint a commission of the best available material to undertake this task." In thus urging an immediate revision of the Charter I did not contemplate the creation of a commission whose members were to be appointed by the Governor and whose de liberations were to be limited to a period of five months. In a matter of this character I believe the interests of the city would be best served by the establishment of a local commission. Such a commission I intend to appoint in the near future, as proposed in my message of January 7. I do not intend to ask this board to make its final report until the latter part of the year 1908, as I be lieve it would take at least a year, if not more, to effect a revision of real and lasting value.

NEW PENITENTIARY PLANS. Jury of Experts Reports in Favor of Trowbridge & Livingstone.

Commissioner Coggey of the Department of Correction announced yesterday that the expert jury which was appointed to make the selection of the plans submitted for the new penitentiary on Riker's Island had reported in favor of the designs submitted by Trowbridge & Livingstone, a firm of architects of this city. The proposed penitentiary will be used for the keeping of short term prisoners of all the boroughs and will do away with the workhouse on Blackwell's Island. The cost of the building will be about $4,000,000, but in order that the city shall not

To construct the first of these sections about $1,000,000 will be required, and it will contain about 2,000 cells. When Blackwell's Island is emptied it will either be turned into a public park or given over to the use of the Department of Charities. Mr. Coggev said that when the buildties. Mr. Coggey said that when the build-ing is finished in its entirety it will be the largest municipal prison in the world

AJAX HAD TO CALL FOR HELP.

Strong Policeman Couldn't Keep Back Crowd When Auto Ran Down Broker. Ira C. Barnes, a produce broker, who ives at 571 West 139th street, while driving his automobile down Fifth avenue last night about 10 o'clock hit and seriously injured Carl Bruch, 63 years old, of 2272 Second avenue. Bicycle Policeman Ajax Whitman arrested Barnes, but the crowd around the automobile was so big and unruly that Whitman called on Policeman

Penean for help. Penean shoved the crowd back, but two girls, Gertrude King of 11 West 111th street and Eleanor Robbins of 1529 Madison avenue didn't move out of the way fast enough to suit him. He took both to the enough to suit him. He took both to the East 126th street station and charged Miss King with disorderly conduct. She was locked up until midnight, when she got bail. Miss Robbins was let go. Barnes was arrested on a charge of assault and gave bail. Bruch's right shoulder was dislocated.
